Funding to help homeowners go green

Government funding can help homeowners with the upfront costs of switching to renewable energy in two ways: the Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI) and the 'Assignment of Rights' (AoR). Here's how they work:

RENEWABLE HEAT INCENTIVE

The RHI was introduced in 2014 and, put simply, it pays homeowners back for all or some of the cost of a renewable heating system over the course of seven years.

ASSIGNMENT OF RIGHTS

The RHI is great – but what if homeowners can't afford a heat pump in the first place? This is where AoR comes in. Evergreen Energy are an Ofgem Approved Investor, this allows us to pay some or all of the upfront cost of the heat pump on behalf of the customer. We then get refunded through the government's RHI payments over the next few years.
